ABOUT

As a full stack capable Front End Developer, my critical thinking skills give me a proven ability to troubleshoot complex technical problems within strict deadlines. This has enabled me to deliver an elegant product that is appealing for the end user. I am a team player who enjoys collaborative work environments to create, design, and deploy high-quality software and web applications. My training and education have given me a competitive advantage on how to implement UI / UX ideas with backend engineering to find an innovative connection between code and design. Past work experiences from crafting custom woodwork to customer service, have contributed to my ability to lead projects from end to end, exceeding client expectations. Recent projects include a full stack job tracking site named Workür, a backend Napster Clone and a mobile responsive Marvel Comic site using test driven development, agile software development and pair programming.
